TRAVEL FROM NEW YORK TO NEW OR-LEANS.

Messrs. Howland & Aspinwall have reduced the to fifty dollars. We desire to call the attention of the railroad and steamboat companies carrying the United States mail between those cities company reduced their fare? We will explain it. They had no opposition until within the millions from passengers to Havana, New Orwish to drive the new line off by reducing the fare; and when this is accomplished they will put the rates up again to seventy-five dollars. We hope the companies will adopt the following schedule, and retain the travel on the mail-From New Orleans to Mobile - $3, instead of $5, as now.

Mobile to Montgomery - 5 Montgomery to Charleston 17 20 Charleston to New York - 17 20 242

It will be perceived from this schedule that it will reduce the fare eleven dollars below what is now charged, and eight dollars less than the steamship rates; the trip will be made quicker, and accidents from storms, &c., such as was recently encountered by the steamer Ohio, will be avoided. Besides, the traveller will have an opportunity of passing through the cities of Augusta, Savannah, Charleston, Richmond, Washington, Baltimore, and Philadelphia; and, if he wishes, he can remain a day or two in each place, instead of being compelled to go on in any weather, by taking a steamship.

We throw out these ideas at this time, as steamboat companies at New York on the 30th of April, when they can among themselves form this through-ticket, so as to be prepared at once for the southern passengers coming north.

Should the fare not be thus reduced, all the travellers from Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, and other southern and western States will go direct from New Orleans to New York, thereby reducing the travel on the great mail-line between the above-named points.

PARENTS AND CHILDREN.

An aged citizen called at our office this morning, and said he thought we could render a good service to this city by admonishing parents and children of the evil tendencies of the us some instances of immorality and wickedness practised no doubt by the children of persons who would not credit the truthful narrative, were it communicated to them. We told him we would make his information and remarks the subject of a leading article in our paper; but the fulfilment of this promise is now rendered unnecessary; for we quote from the Balward opening the eyes of all to the iniquitous of persons. and depraved tendencies of false parental indulgence than could any thing we could possibly say on the subject. A little boy, not six years old, has been cruelly murdered by boys probably not twice his own age! Incredible as this may appear, we fear it is but too true. But we have another truth to add to this. It that in the streets of Washington there are to throw stones, in the most vindictive manner: and, when doing these things, are incapable of defining the point at which their wicked practices are to stop.

Parents who would be faithful to their offspring are as imperatively required to control and subdue such propensities as to provide them with food and clothing, and they who fail to do so have a fearful responsibility resting upon

The narrative we quote cannot be read by any man or woman possessing the least sensibility without the emotions of both pity and city. We will thus have still another institution indignation; and we earnestly beseech all, in view of this melancholy admonition, to resolve upon a better course of conduct for the future, and to prevent, as far as it is possible to do so, the indiscriminate association in the streets of our city of children who are too young to be fortified against the malign influences of such association

JENNY LIND AND THE FIREMEN OF NEW YORK.

We are gratified to learn that the Firemen of somely, and have purchased a splendid gold box, to contain a parchment copy of the vote of thanks passed by them to Jenny Lind, on account of her donation of $3,000 to the Fire Department Fund. The box is seven inches in length by three in width, and weighs twelve this box, together with a complete copy of Audubon's "Birds and Quadrupeds of America," both to be placed in a miniature resewood bookcase of exquisite workmanship. The moneys for the purchase of this present were raised by individual subscription among the members of the department. The presentation will be made upon the return of Miss Lind to that city.

MAIL CONTRACTS.

We learn that on Monday next the Postmaster General will announce his decisions on the proposals for mail contracts in the States of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida; and also on the proposals for new routes established by the last Congress-commencing with Virginia-at eight o'clock a. m.

GEORGETOWN.

To the Editors of the American Telegraph. GENTLEMEN: I find, since my last communication, that another correspondent, "Lowlands," has made his appearance, and particularizes what I spoke of only in general terms, and seems to find fault with me for not specifying men and places; and then goes on to give you the names of a few individuals-all well enough-not, however, perceiving that there are others, engaged in business in the vicinity, By the New York papers we perceive that who might consider themselves slighted by such a course upon his part. Hence it was that I fare on their steamships, between these points, spoke of the prosperity of the town in general terms, to avoid the difficulty that he has fallen

It is not true, as asserted by "Low-lands," to the propriety of reducing their fare, and of that Georgetown is behind the age in regard to adapting a through-ticket to the schedule we education. On the contrary, it became a prosubmit, in order that the travel may be brought | verb before he was born, that Georgetown was over their routes, instead of by means of celebrated for her schools and academies. He a direct communication between New York surely has not forgotten that we have a college and New Orleans. Why have the steamship that is coexistent with the first inhabitants of addition to what we have heretofore published, the city, and that it has the reputation, not only in this country, but also in Europe, as one last month, when the steamers Union and among the first in the United States. Has he Winfield Scott were put upon the line. This is also forgotten the Convent of Visitation, conthe cause. They are not satisfied with making tiguous to the college, where may be seen collected together representatives from all parts of leans, and Chagres, at enormous rates, but now our country-from the distant snow-capped mountains of the north to the sunny climes of the far south-all, all bearing testimony that Georgetown is justly celebrated for her institutions of learning. Has he not known the fact that just above the Heights there is established a seminary for young men, in a very flourishing condition; and that there is, right in the very centre of the town, a seminary for young ladies, known as Miss English's, and that it has ranked for years as a school of great refinement and progress: to say nothing of the schools of term, after the example of Washington and Jef-Messrs. Abbott, Simpson, Porter, and a legion ferson. This condition was not agreed to, but of others, too tedious to mention; proving the position of "Low-lands" to be untenable, and, on the contrary, showing that, in proportion to our population, there are to be found nowhere tria will have to relax somewhat of her extreme so many facilities for acquiring knowledge as pretensions. This can lead substantially to no this ancient town possesses. I think he was a little hasty in coming to such conclusions. I endeavored to show you in my last, in general terms, the prosperous condition of Georgetown, its advantages, commercial, natural, and social. I shall in a future one describe more minutely those institutions that I have only there is to be a meeting of these railroad and glanced at this time. In the mean time, the position I then assumed in regard to our present and future prosperity is every day being more fully realized. The demand for houses, the increasing value of property, are the natural consequences of this state of things. Within a very short time property has been sold from ten to twenty per cent. above the assessment.

"Low-lands" but speaks the sentiments of almost every one when he attributes the growing importance of Georgetown to the indefatigable exertions of our industrious and excellent Mayor; and, while upon this subject, I beg leave to say that, if Providence should spare his life, he will (in conjunction with our Boards of Aldermen and Common Council) in a very short time so arrange the financial matters of loose conduct of the latter; and he related to the Corporation that her debt will be entirely extinguished. Already, through the management and sagacity of Major Jewell and the Mayor, the stock of this Corporation is at a premium, and hard to get, at that. THE LATE FOREIGN NEWS.

The items given by the northern papers, in are not of much interest. The Tribune condenses the whole into the following: "The news from Europe by the Africa has nothing startling. The Anti-Papal bill has passed to a second reading in the House of Commons by a very large majority, and will no doubt be as successful on the final trial. Lord John Russell has brought in his bill for the Reform of the Court of Chancery, and a very faint and moderate reform it is. Nothing has yet been heard of the new budget, and yet it is proposed that the usual Easter recess shall be nged to double the usual time. Evidently the British legislators are in no hurry. In France no important change has happened, a definitive ministry is not yet organized, and it is reported that Odillon Barrot replied to a proposal to accept the premiership, that he would do so only on the condition that Louis Napoleon should agree to leave his office at the end of his yet we fancy Louis will have to do the thing when the time comes. In Germany no new glimpse of light diminishes the darkness of the The impression seems to be that Ausother result than the restoration of the old Diet at Frankfort. In the other countries there is nothing which calls for remark."

From the Baltimore Sun of this morning.

HORRIBLE MURDER OF A BOY FIVE YEARS OF AGE-Arrest of accused parties .- In the afternoon papers of yesterday, an advertisement appeared from Jacob C. Rumpf, of Hampstead Hill, desiring information of his son, John Rumpf, a boy less than six years of age, who had been missed from his residence on Thursday night. A melancholy sequel has presented itself to this advertisement, the circumstances of which we will endeavor to state.

The boy left home about noon on Thursday. and his parents supposed him to be at school Evening came, and he did not appear-night followed, and he was still absent; and then apprehension became aroused, and the word was passed he was missing. Bells were rung, and parties started in search, but their efforts were unsuccessful. Yesterday forenoon the search was again pursued, but without success, until one o'clock, when his lifeless body was discov-

At that hour Mr. James Bankard passed a slaughter-house belonging to his brother, Mr. Jacob Bankard, located on the Hill, and remarked that the door was unloosed. The slaughter-house had not been in use for some two months. He went in, and the first object that met his view was the lifeless remains of the lost boy. He was lying on the board floor-'close pen" of the slaughter-house, and the appearance was that it had been thrown into the place through the window. There were and a bar of one of the doors also had evidences of fresh drops of blood. There were, too, appearances outside of the cattle-yard, as if a ody had been dragged along to the window, shiell, the physician of the family, was sent for, and he was present with the jury of inquest, which had been summoned by Coroner Conway, A dark, copper-colored young woman, yelept who was also immediately called to the scene.

was one wound, in the left frontal bone there was another wound, and a third wound was on the back of the head. These wounds were evidently the effects of blows from a blunt instrument, not cutting much, nor breaking the skull, but causing a great extravasation of blood. The physician was of opinion that the wounds were officted some place distant from the spot where the body was found, as there was no ap-pearance of bleeding on the spot. There were too, appearances by which a surgeon would be considerable bleeding at the place where the injury was inflicted. The right arm was greatly bruised, as if injured in the effort to protect his head; and both hands were much swollen on the knuckles, together with a considerable bruise on the back. Near the body was found a half brick, bloody, with some hair upon it; also a part of a broom-handle with blood on it. Every thing connected with the appearance of th body indicated that a murder most foul had been committed, and the next inquiry was as to the murderers.

The first witness examined was a bey named Woelper, who stated that he met the deceased late in the evening in Ann street. To-gether they went to Broadway, and thence towards Washington College. Here they saw some boys—witness ran away and stones were thrown after him. He got home about six o'clock. The deceased did not run back with throwing the stones.

Mrs. Wilkinson and her daughter testified to seeing Irons about the vicinity, and acting in a suspicious manner. They knew nothing about the deceased.

Charles Downs testified that he came from work after six o'clock, for his supper. He was met by Irons, who invited him to go to the grave-yard (Christ church) to take a walk. He said he had been to Herring Run. He after-wards said that the remark of his being at the Run was only a joke.

The jury gave a verdict, after some five hours' investigation, that the deceased came to his leath by blows inflicted by some persons un-

As connected with this occurrence, we may add the representation of a colored girl, though her statement is no testimony. She lives in the immediate vicinity, and she says that about six clock she saw two boys knock down a little boy, and two larger ones drag him off. She did not know any of the parties.

After the evidence being received, warrants were issued, and officers Coath and Taylor arrested Benjamin F. Hopkins, about nineteen years of age, and William Irons, about sixteen years of age, as parties suspected of being engaged in the murder. Justice Warrington, bewhom they were brought, committed them to jail for a further hearing.

Troubles are like insects; the smaller they are the more they annoy you.

NEWS BY THIS MORNING'S MAIL.

Bostos, April 11—12 p. m.—The habeas corpus case came up before Judge Woodbury this afternoon. The same discussion as heretofore arose. Mr. Thomas claimed that it was his right to appear solely as counsel for Symmes, holding as he did the certificate from the Commissioner remanding Symmes to his master, as Symmes now stood as regarded his master in the situation of a ward. Mr. Sewall replied that might be law in slave States, but Massachusetts. Judge Woodbury asked Sewall if Massachusetts was not a State of the Union which recognised the institution of slavery? For his part, he thanked God that Massachusetts was still a State of the Union-(Great applause in court-room—marshal called loudly to order.) Sumner then argued the case at length and Mr. Curtis rejoined. Judge Woodbury then decided that the warrant was legal, and that the marshal acted properly.

The usual affidavit that he fears a rescue has been made by the agent of the claimant, and probably such a force will be detailed of police, military, &c., to carry Symmes out of the State as will render an attempt at rescue impossible. ## BUSINESS MEMORANDA.

PHILANTHROPISTS .-- If men who are not gentlemen can be made to look like such by appropriateness of dress and becoming adornments, how much more prepossessing and genteel must be the appearance of a true gentleman who pays due regard to these things! We are hourly reminded of this, as we walk the avenue, by the appearance of the many persons with whom we meet; and by their becoming garb we fancy that we can distinguish the customers of Mr P. J. Steer, of Eighth street, near the avenue, and Mr. G. W. HINTON, below the National Hotel. When the hat, the cravat, the gloves, the cane, and all the et ceteras are in perfect keeping with good taste, Mr. STEVENS, of the Athe eum, may well be supposed to have lent his counsels and if a graceful carriage gives indication of easy and comfortable boots, the mind may readily recur to But, after all, the finish is seldom attained until the aid of Mr. Gibbs, on the avenue, between Ninth and Tenth streets, has been invoked. "Ah," said the gentle-man, "I'll try you on your own proposition: give me a glass of brandy and water, if you please!" "Really," said Mr. Parker, as he smiled and rubbed his hands, "I cannot answer that call exactly, but I have something here will wear much better, and that I am sure your wife and daughters will admire very much;" and lo! he produced the Temperance Pledge!

THE SUBSCRIBER respectfully tenders his thanks to his customers and the public for their patronage, for many years extended to him on the Avenue, and informs them that he has been compelled, by contemplated improvements at the old stand, to change, for the present, his place of business. He has fitted up a store on Eighth street, third door from the Avenue, where he hopes still to serve the public acceptably, and solicits a continuance of their favors.

An examination of his new Spring Goods is particularly invited, as he has made arrangements for making them up to order, in the most superior style, and at prices to sait the times.
